

As part of their assessment, International Baccalaureate seniors had their artworks exhibited at the Museum of Arts and Crafts on January 26, 2018. From portraits, sculptures and various creative installations to abstract paintings and photographs, each student had their own unique way of conveying a concept of their liking. They tackled topics like anatomy studies, industrialization and mass production, mental illnesses and observations from nature. No matter the complexity and depth of each art piece, all artworks featured at the Museum made for a coherent, visually appealing and creative exhibition that served as evidence of their talent, originality and innovative artistry.
